FOR RELEASE

JUNE 26 - OCTOBER 30, 1993 LIEGE CELEBRATES THE 90TH BIRTHDAY OF GEORGES SIMENON WITH AN EXHIBITION ON THE MAN AND HIS WRITINGS

Georges Simenon, creator of Inspector Maigret, the hero of 76 of his novels written between 1929 and 1972 was born in Liege at 26, rue Leopold on February 13, 1903.

works have been translated in 87 languages and edited in hundreds of thousands of publications. There have been 55 movies made of his books and hundreds of TV shows. To commemorate his prodigious literary output; 1500 articles, 1000 short stories, 200 novels, or ime novels in the Maigret series and 212 other novels, some 40 of which are undeniably major contributions to world literature, Liege has planned an exhibition on the man and his work to be held between June 26 and October 30, 1993.

The main subject of the exhibition will cover Simenon as 'the man, the writer, the journalist and the traveler' but will also focus on his 'Inspector Maigret'. The exhibition will include conferences, films, theatre productions, a contest to write a novel inspired by the writings of Simenon, a celebration at Outremeuse, a fair and flea market where Simenon collectibles can be purchased or exchanged. The exhibition will be a chronological guide through the life of Simenon and will include previously unpublished material, formerly exhibited documents and reconstructed scenes from his novels.

During the four months of the exhibition, Liege will be decorated and transformed into Simenonville. An Information Center, a Book Fair, live TV and Radio Shows from the site of the exhibition, and a superb catalogue produced by the ten best known specialists on the works of Georges Simenon will be available.

Between 1945 and 1955 Georges Simenon and his family lived in New York. He then lived in France from 1955 to 1957 and subsequently settled in Lausanne, Switzerland, where he died at age 86 on September 4, 1989.

The exhibition will take place at the Musee d'Art Walloon at 86, rue Feronstree in Liege, the true home of Simenon and Maigret.

50TH ANNIVERSARY NORMANDY LANDINGS AND BATTLE OF THE BULGE

Beginning with the Allied landings in Normandy in June of 1944, the Allied Armies were on the March towards victory in Europe the following spring. But before the unconditional surrender of German forces on May 8, 1945, a pivotal battle took place in the Belgian Ardennes that could have altered the outcome.

Hitler's last ditch effort to race across Belgium and re-take the port of Antwerp and split the Allied Force: In two, came to its ignominious end with the Ardennes Offensive. The "Battle of the Bulge" began in fog and darkness it 5:30 am on December 16, 1944 and continued through the fierce winter storm until the final mopping up at the end of January 1945.

The uniformed ranks of the United States fought for this soil as if it had been their homeland. The people of the Ardennes opened their hearts and homes to the defenders; sharing their food, blankets and fuel. They tore up their bedsheets for use in concealing men and weapons. 76,890 Americans were killed, wounded or marked missing in action.

The Bastogne Memorial on Mardasson Hill is dedicated to the enduring friendship of Belgium and the United States, and it represents a token of respect of the Belgian Nation to the American Army and its Allies for the part they played in the liberation of Europe.

The Memorial, constructed in the shape of a five-pointed star, was dedicated at ground-breaking ceremonies July 16, 1946 and completed in 1950. The massive sandstone points of the star rise to a circular gallery with its central atrium. The insignia of the principal units who took part in the fighting are reproduced in enameled medallions. Nearby is the Bastogne Historical Center. Its central amphitheatre offers a multivision of the battle. Everything in the museum is authentic including the uniform of General Anthony C. McAuliff, who replied "Nuts" to the German demand for surrender. Bastogne is 95 miles from Brussels.
